I. Reading Comprehension:

Television and Children

Television programs entertain, educate, frighten and baby sit a large segment of children from the time they are one or two years old. Most children can watch whatever program is on , and the parents don't pay much attention to the effect those programs might have. Most programs can be classed as beneficial, harmful or neutral, according to what effect it will have on a child.

The beneficial television programs are usually the ones that educate. A few regular children's programs help develop the child's interest in school-type learning by teaching numbers and the alphabet and they encourage children to be creative.

Thoughtful parents will not allow their children to view the bad programs and need to discourage them from watching the neutral ones. A child's viewing time needs to be limited to watching the educational, beneficial programs.
